

Leadership Profile

Dennis Gahm

LE7549: Dynamics of Team Leadership

Dr. Ron Boehme, D. Min.

Introduction

On my Leadership Profile, I received “High D” and “High I.” From these results, I can tell that I am very strong willed with a strong ego and that I love people and relationships. This is the essence of these two dimensions.

I believe that I fit these profiles very well, and that the results are accurate. However, compared to my other class, for the Inner Journey of a Leader, these results are very sparse. For the results of the other class, I was given much more specific details on my strengths. However, I see that these two results complement each other because this profile is very blunt and focuses on the main topic. The other profile was very specific and was in the details.

I believe that the main thing I learned from this profile is that I am a person who loves people and am very strong willed. This is a good profile for a future CIA agent personality, but I personally won't go into that because I do have too much fantasies about such secret agent type lives. I am blood type A and I love being a perfectionist. But at the same time, I see that I love people and would serve others.

Ministry wise, this is a good combination because I am able to do an excellent job while still loving others.

In this paper, I am going to split it into one section being regarding my “High D,” and then the next section about “High I.” I am going to have larger sections regarding each page of the Leadership Profile and commenting on how it relates to me and what I discovered about myself.

High D (page 1 of Leadership Profile)

Some of the words that stand out to me on this page is “practical, does many things at once, desires change, impatient, high ego, efficient and assertive, keen mind.” And on the flip side for the negatives I see, “not sympathetic, bored by details.”

What is interesting about me is that I am actually interested in the fine arts, as opposed to what the document says. I love music and I love paintings and art works (although I cannot draw). I actually have an on and off switch, where when I’m on, I’m constantly working to make things improve and go faster and better. And when I’m off - when I’m finally off - I just waste time doing things that don’t matter, such as listening to music.

Regarding the positives, I’d like to say that I love being practical. This is one reason why I would like to be a minister rather than a professor. However, I love the methodical thinking and deep thinking of a professor. So, honestly, I’m a little bipolar and I don’t know what I’m going to be in the end, but I do see that I have a variety of strengths. And I love “power.” I love being able to control things and dictate things. It doesn’t mean that I’m power-hungry in that I seek power, but when power is given to me by God and people, I love being able to use it wisely and effectively. I am a good leader - I am a person people want in power because my power is good and used well. I believe that my “High I” allows me to use this power for the benefit of others, and that I am able to love others with strength.

It is very true that I am an exploder. I get angry and when I get angry I get very angry. It is a very sad thing, but because I am such a strong and head strong person, I am able to get very sharp and attack and mean. I think this is a way of getting control and power back into my hand because I feel something is unjust and something is wrong. I may need to explore more why I get angry. But it is definitely something that I control and minimize.

I think that getting angry in ministry is destructive and can lead to many dead ends and destroy relationships. It can probably get me banned from a church - as it has at one point.

But I think the strength of it is that I release all the tension and I become very honest with how I feel. I think that it is good in the long run because although in the short run people are fettered and upset - in the long run, people will come together and resolve the issue. Keeping things hidden is worse. I don't keep things hidden - I'm open and reveal all things.

High I (page 2)

I am definitely a "High I" because I need social contact. Without social contact, I feel terrible. I don't know how I survived COVID, but I think that is one thing that I don't want to experience again - for many reasons. I pray that I am able to reach out to all people, especially those who come from a similar background as me.

My background, socially, was that of an outcast. I didn't have any friends and I didn't talk to anyone. Thus, when I see someone who is alone and has no friends, I'm able to reach out to them. I think these people are diamonds in a rut, and that if I do ministry right, I can bring many people to Christ and love people who have no love.

I want to be able to love people who are homeless, and who never received God's love and kindness before. The amazing joy in their hearts and eyes, and the light of life that befalls them is one thing that I loved receiving myself and would love to give to others.

I love pleasing others and serving others. I want more people to serve in my life - please pray for this. I need people in my life, and right now, I lack many people.

One thing that the description of the profile says is that it says that the main issue is belonging. And it is so true that I value belonging. More than theology or knowledge, I value being loved and to love others. I value family so much. I value friendship.

These values I value more than anything else. More than making money or having something to boast about, I'd rather die for my country or die for Christ Jesus.

It is very true that I "speak before thinking" because I value being honest more than being calculative. But to be honest, because I am high D as well, I calculate my honesty as well. And I speak impulsively with a knowledge and assurance and guarantee that it is out of love and from a good place and that it will generate good results because the origin and seed is good.

I agree that I am agreeable. According to this paper you can see that I am very agreeable in my writing - that I love to agree with what is written on the leadership profile and agree with the professor. I don't like to cause conflict. However, when conflict occurs, I'm able to deal with it.

How I would use it for my ministry and life

One of the most important things that I can do for my life is to apply the knowledge that I gain to my life, rather than just having head knowledge. Thus, I dedicate the largest section of my paper to this section - to apply to my life and ministry. One of the interesting things that I'd like to say is that I love to apply things to my life. The question is, is it worthy of my time? And according to Faith seminary all of these things that I am learning is worthy of my time.

However, the question is what about all of the other things that I'm experiencing in my life I cannot just simply study all day long. And so I go back to the question what do I really want to learn from this class and from this leadership profile? And the answer is I really want to learn how I can be a good leader and so I want to write about why I want to be a good leader. The reason I want to be a good leader is because the world needs a leader who leads with justice and love and one of the things I learned about myself through this leadership profile is that I have love and I also have justice because I'm High I and High D. The reason why this is important is because this tells me who I am in the light of God. Knowing who I am tells me what is truly just and what is perfect and what I am and how I can contribute myself to other people.

I just came back from a business meeting for my company D-Lite Solution Inc. And what I found was that my personality and leadership profile dictated how I conducted the meeting. It is so important to know who you are in light of Christ and in the terms of business because it'll determine how you act in certain situations and deal with many different types of people. We have to leverage our strings and we have to know what our weaknesses are. We have to know our blindspots. One of the things that I noticed in the meeting was that I did not talk much. It was one of the hardest experiences in my life not that it was one of the most hardest, but it was difficult in my life.

I had to listen and listen and listen and listen. I had to hold my tongue because my opinion was not the main point of the issue. My opinion is to be given when they really need it and when I really need to give it and to be able to speak a few words that are very important and that truly make a difference is what makes a leader have power and importance.

It is important not to say flippant things. And also, we have to listen to others. In the meeting, they were discussing many different things and psychological issues were taking place. We have to determine honesty and justice and values.

My High I and High D allowed me to be a person who truly understands the situation and makes the world a better place. I was able to make everyone feel comfortable and to give advice and ideas that are truly valuable. It was a combination of power and love. It was a combination of knowledge and also innocence. It was a combination of purity and everything else. Without love, we are able to do nothing and then it's truly what Jesus says and John 15. It's a funny thing when Jesus says we can do nothing. Sometimes we like to think that we can still do something without Jesus, but truly the truth is, we can do absolutely nothing without Jesus we can't even make one hair grow out a little bit longer. And so if we want to do business, and if we want to make money, and if we want to be a leader, we have to truly understand that we cannot do anything without Jesus Christ.

And one of the things about the High D that makes my personality very good is that it helps me to really understand the quality of the Bible very well. And the high eye allows me to have a joyful attitude while being serious as a high D.

Conclusion

In conclusion, I am able to make people happy and also be very serious at the same time and solve difficult problems. The combination of a high and high eye is able to cause me to be very productive and to be very serious, but also contribute a lot in terms of knowledge and power. This is all the while being joyful and being lighthearted. One of the things I'm learning is that in this society, there's a lot of potential and there's a lot of skills and there's a lot of resources but that it takes a leader to be able to combine these things and actually convert this potential into actuality. There are so many people waiting for a good leader to come by and I want to be that good leader. Thank you.